

Isle of Man

September 2016: After a three-hour sailing from Belfast on a 315-foot catamaran we arrive at the Isle of Man. Landing at the capital city Douglas with the Tower of Refuge fronting its two-mile-long beach front.

Transportation around the island is unique. In addition to the catamaran that brought me here, there is a steam railroad around the south of the island, an electric railroad in the north, an electric tramway to the top of highest mountain and a horse drawn Tramway along the beachfront. The island is also home to one of the great motorcycle events in the world, the Tourist Trophy locally known as the TT.

Ferry

Tower of Refuge

Horse Tramway

Douglas Rail Station

Steam Train

Electric Railway

Snaefell Electric Trams

Snaefell

Laxey Wheel

Peel Castle

Port Erin